1 Management commentary

Approval process

The workload from the 2014-15 academic year is almost concluded. As of 31 October 2015, there were just 7 active cases from the 2014-15 academic year. One case is due to go to a revisit and the remainder are in the process of meeting conditions for consideration at the Education and Training Panel in November or December 2015.

The Department has progressed its four reviews from the 2014-15 academic year. In November 2015, the Education and Training Committee considered draft reports on (i) the three years of visits to social worker programmes and (ii) the two years of visits to AMHP programmes. These are now being finalised with publication and dissemination planned for early 2016. The reviews into the (iii) the first year of inclusion of lay visitors on approval panels and (iv) the general, annual review leading to the annual report are due to be finalised in 2016.

The Department has continued to schedule and attend approval visits in the 2015–16 academic year. In total, 43 visits have now been formally scheduled. The profile of professions due to be visited has changed slightly. Two professions continue to dominate the schedule (paramedics (36%) and social workers (27%)) but visits to the other professions/entitlements are accounting for a larger proportion overall (36%). Given the six month notice period we require, we are not expecting to arrange visits to any new programmes before June 2016 now.

Annual monitoring process

The Department concluded the annual monitoring process for the 2014–15 academic year in November 2015.

The Department has begun the annual monitoring process for the 2015–16 academic year. All education providers have now been contacted with their individual requirements and the communications strategy has included a blog piece for the first time. Approximately 900 programmes are expected to engage with the process, which is the highest ever, and a 36% increase on the last academic year. The stepped increase in workload is primarily due to social work, approval mental health professional and independent prescribing programmes engaging with the process for the first time. Across the board, the process also had additional complexities this year, as it is being used to assess changes to all programmes, in relation to revised standards of proficiency and the new service user standard of education and training. The number and frequency of assessment days will increase over the next twelve months to allow us to continue to process all cases efficiently.

The Department received 15 new declaration cases in September and October 2015. No audit cases were due for submission or considered in September and October 2015.

Major change process

The Department considered 62 new major change notifications, covering 100 programmes in September and October 2015. All of which have remained in the major change process for full documentary and visitors' assessment. 50 major change cases were concluded in September and October 2015, with the average time taken to consider a complete submission at 2.2 months. As of 31 October 2015, there were 85 active major change cases (these transcend the two academic years).

Concerns process

The Department received one new concern in in September and October 2015. One concern case was concluded in September and October 2015 and involved a referral to the standard approval process. As of 31 October 2015, there were two active concerns – one at the initial enquiry stage and one at the final outcome stage, with Education and Training Committee due to consider it in November 2015.

See sections 2 and 3 for more statistical information on the above operational processes.

Partners

The focused recruitment campaign for music therapists and prosthetists/orthotists visitors in September and October 2015 was very successful. Three music therapists and three prosthetists/orthotists visitors were appointed and the risk in these areas have been significantly reduced. Following the second phase of the recruitment campaign for podiatric surgery visitors in September, we now have five visitors to support this new area of work.

A two day training session for recently recruited visitors has been scheduled in December 2015. The first of four refresher training sessions took place in October, with remaining sessions planned for November, December and January 2016.

Liaison with stakeholders

Members of the Department met with the following stakeholders in October and November 2015:

- Quality Assurance Agency (QAA)
- Quality Assurance Agency and College of Paramedics
- Health Education England
- Academy of Healthcare Science
- Education Inter-Regulatory Group
- NHS Wales (workshop)

Systems

The Department has primarily focused on the second and final phase of the Education systems build major project in recent months. This includes both development work (to resolve bugs identified since go live) and integration work (with other HCPC information systems).

Employees

The total number of employees across the Department remains at seventeen, with a budgeted headcount of 19 expected by the end of 2015-16. Aveen Croash (former Education Administrator) was successful is being offered one of the new Systems and Quality Officers posts and took up this new position in November 2015. We were unsuccessful in appointing to the second Systems and Officer post and will re-advertise in January 2016. The Department will recruit to the vacant Education Administrator post in November/December 2015. We continue to hold a vacant Education Officer position (temporary/backfill) and will re-evaluate recruiting to this in early 2016 now.
